“You Can’t Stop What You Don’t Know”

An Evening Community and Parent Training

Illicit drug use, prescription drug abuse, alcohol abuse, and underage drinking affect all communities. Young people in particular are at greater risk for abuse. It is imperative to have a current awareness of which drugs are common and available in our community as well as the current trends for use and abuse.

Please join guest speaker, Officer Jermaine Galloway, “Tall Cop,” as he conducts a presentation on these matters and encourages our community to recognize the trends and prevent, reduce, and stop drug abuse.

Standing at 6’9”, Officer Jermaine Galloway can look intimidating. But, in fact, he’s a devoted, passionate man who cares about America’s youth and communities. That passion informs what he does with Tall Cop Says Stop. Galloway is a national expert in alcohol and drug trends and is a resource for those involved with prevention, education, and enforcement. Officer Galloway began his Idaho law enforcement career in 1997 and has more than 20 years’ experience in alcohol and drug education, enforcement, and prevention. Officer Galloway spends much of his time today speaking to youth at school assemblies, professionals at drug prevention trainings, and parents at town hall meetings. To date, he has trained more than 105,000 people nationwide and internationally.
